

This architecture allows us to add a new car by creating method in CarFactory to create the new car model with specified components.

Allows us to add a new component(Tires), by creating a new component class implementing Serviceable and define its service strategy.

Allows us to change a component for a car by modifying the CarFactory method to use the new component when constructing the car.

